House Passes Glanville Bill & Hundreds Protest Charter School Cuts on CT-N Capitol Report: Week in Review

Hartford, CT – This Friday at 7 p.m., Connecticut Network viewers will recap the Governor’s comments on budget negotiations, a large rally that took place at the Capitol and the bills currently up for debate in the House and Senate on this week’s episode of CT-N Capitol Report: Week in Review.

This week at the State Capitol the House of Representatives debated the so-called “Doug Glanville Bill” which prevents police officers from enforcing local ordinances once they cross town lines. The bill, which is named after former baseball player and current ESPN analyst Doug Glanville, came to fruition after a February 2014 incident where a West Hartford police officer questioned Glanville at his Hartford residence. In the upper chamber, the Senate considered a number of bills that covered a variety of topics, including safe sleep practices for infants and adding labor and free market capitalism to the curriculum in public schools.

Action also took place outside of the Capitol this week as hundreds of charter school advocates congregated outside the building and protested the funding cuts featured in the spending bill passed by the Appropriations Committee last week.

Capitol Report will also discuss Governor Dannel Malloy’s comments on the status of state budget negotiations, a new six-state effort to crackdown on highway safety violations, as well as the Judiciary Committee’s votes on bills concerning Uber, blighted properties and the sale of ivory and rhinoceros horn in Connecticut.

Capitol Report: Week in Review summarizes the activity at the State Capitol during the week, using voice over and graphics to combine history, context, and next steps in the process with full-length excerpts from the week’s proceedings. The program premieres on CT-N every Friday night at 7:00 p.m., then rebroadcasts at Noon and 7:00 p.m. on Saturdays, 8:00 p.m. on Sundays, and 6:00 a.m. Monday mornings; check CT-N’s online program schedule for additional airtimes. Each episode runs between 30 and 60 minutes.
