Education Secretary Visits Hartford & New Data on Domestic Violence Response on *CT-N Capitol Report: Week in Review

Hartford, CT – This Friday at 7 p.m., Connecticut Network viewers will recap a visit from the U.S. Secretary of Education, new data on how law enforcement responds to domestic violence and a discussion on state spending on the latest episode of CT-N Capitol Report: Week in Review.

U.S. Secretary of Education John B. King, Jr. visited Hartford on Wednesday to participate in a roundtable discussion on the importance of diversity in education. Secretary King was joined by Governor Dannel Malloy, other elected officials, educators, parents and students who touted Connecticut's education system as a national model. Over at the Capitol, new data was presented to the Family Violence Model Policy Working Group that shows how law enforcement in the state is responding to domestic violence cases. Meanwhile, the Spending Cap Commission also met this week to hear comment from economist Peter Gioia of the CBIA. Together they discussed the business community's views on spending limitations in state government.

Capitol Report will also review a discussion amongst the Governor's Certificate of Need Task Force on whether competition should play a new role in the hospital merger and acquisition approval process in Connecticut.

Capitol Report: Week in Review summarizes the activity at the State Capitol during the week, using voice over and graphics to combine history, context, and next steps in the process with full-length excerpts from the week's proceedings.
